A husband was on his death bed and he told his wife I have $50,000 in my account and I want to be buried with all of my money.

His wife said "ok."

A few days later, he died. Right before they closed the casket, his wife walked up to the casket with a little wooden box and put it in his casket. Her friend asked, you didn't put $50,000 in the casket, did you? She replied, yes, I did. I'm a Christian, I can not lie.

Her friend asked, are you crazy to bury $50k? She replied, no.

I wrote a check.

A little boy was fishing, he caught 2 small fish which he had in his bucket. Then suddenly he caught a BIG fish, he reeled it in, unhooked it and threw the fish back. When asked why did he do that, the little boy replied my frying pan is only 9 inches wide.

This story makes me aware of how a person's thinking can limit them. So....

What is your frying pan story?
