JOB DESCRIPTION:

Check, analyze, and evaluate the operation of any electronic equipment that may arrive at a maintenance facility, or be used at a remote location, for service or repair. This equipment will include data and microwave communication systems, two-way radios configured as a portable, mobile and base station, roadside call boxes and emergency dispatch centers used for public safety, aircraft and runway radios, earth station, telephone switching equipment and their associated ancillary specifications and Federal Communications Commission (FCC) standards of tolerance and performance. Adjust or align the equipment to meet those requirements. Initiate the appropriate standards. Evaluate system performance and make any refining adjustments, aligning, tuning, repairing malfunctions and replacing defective components or taking other appropriate corrective action as may be necessary to ensure the optimum performance of the equipment.
