SYRAH

SADIE FAMILY COLUMELLA 1oz 3oz 5oz
 SWARTLAND SOUTH AFRICA 2014.....9 27 45

There's a sense of spirituality in the way Eben Sadie speaks about wine. The way a sculptor speaks in reverence of the slab of stone that will be carved away to reveal the form inside. He speaks of the story to tell of the grape, the site, and the soil. He uses metaphors of music and art to describe the potential of wine. And in his hands, wine really does approach the level of art.

Eben Sadie spent years working in vineyards across Europe before falling in love with his homeland of South Africa. South Africa's climate is largely Mediterranean, a climate that can host countless grape varieties and grow them well. For Sadie, though, it's not enough to simply grow a grape for commercial success; the grapes chosen must be the ones that best reflect the site, and no element of winemaking can be allowed to get in the way.

Columella is a field blend dominated by Syrah, but with Mourvèdre, Grenache, Tinta Barroca, and others rounding out the palate. By the time of the 2014 vintage, Sadie had spent years scrutinizing his winemaking decisions to arrive at the perfect approach to showcase this site's character: pure dark fruit and earth, without the cloud of oak that often characterizes "New World" wines.

FEATURED FLIGHT $22 WASHINGTON WINE MONTH

With a history dating back hundreds of years, Syrah is fused to the Northern Rhône region of France in the minds of wine drinkers. Thanks to innovative producers like these in Washington, it won't take hundreds of years before Syrah comes to mind when drinkers think of Washington. With styles ranging from pure dark fruit to loads of earth, meat, and spice, these wines show the immense versatility of Syrah in Washington, and the talent of those pioneers that are establishing its empire.
