

The Healing of a Planet -Presidential

Funny Business

The ugliness that has displayed itself in living color during this presidential cycle has been difficult to watch on an emotional level. On an energetic level it reminds me of how life is ultimately orchestrated by a consciousness greater than the here and now. Until ugliness, sickness or limitation is exposed, it cannot be healed. The ugliness has been exposed. What was hiding in the crevasses of our country is out in the open. That makes it much easier to find and eliminate. This exercise in gore and depravity has actually been a gift to America and to the planet.

With Hilary Clinton bringing the feminine to the global stage we will activate the feminine on our planet like never before in modern history. This is not a commentary on women against men, rather on a restoration of balance. This is a healing activity. No matter how you look at it, this is a good thing for our spiritual evolution.

Whether it is cancer, a cold, mental illness or abuse, when light is shined upon dark , we create opportunity to heal. Our planet has a say. Mother earth has spoken.

As we move into the next life cycle of Earth take heart and reflect on the dominant truth that love ultimately wins. No matter how dark momentums can feel, light eventually cures. We come from good, and can only return to good.
