

CPR—Treatment Centers

Contemporary Pediatrics Resources

Hope is not something that parents should have to lose about their son or daughter. But when a child grows dependent on drugs or alcohol, tough-love parenting and support of friends, family, and pediatrician may not be enough. These treatment centers for young people can't promise results, and they can be devastatingly expensive. But for parents who cannot give up on their children, it's a step they'll have to take. Learning about these centers can help you make sure the parents and child don't go it alone.
