About Democratic Black Caucus of Florida:

Forty-one years ago, over forty Black delegates from around the State of Florida, attending the 1981 Florida State Democratic Party Convention in Hollywood, Florida were alerted to the need for increasing the power and influence of Black Democrats within the party. A decision was made at that Convention to unite Black Democrats throughout the State. The decision resulted in the organization of the Democratic Black Caucus of Florida, which was officially recognized on September 24, 1983, by the Florida Democratic Party Florida as an official affiliate organization.

Vision:

The Democratic Black Caucus of Florida believes that the future of our Caucus depends upon building political entitlements, making social adjustments, enforcing educational advancements, and demanding equitable business transactions. The Caucus is an integral part of the Florida Democratic Party's infrastructure, which unites talent with opportunity to facilitate voter turnout and identify qualified Black Democrats to run for office. The DBCF will continue in building through educational forums effecting Voter Registration Drives (EVRD), Get Out the Vote (GOTV), Voter Action Network (VAN) and Vote By Mail (VBM).

Mission:

In a continued effort the Democratic Black Caucus of Florida will work with leaders from around the State of Florida in its effort to establish County chapters in all 67 Florida counties. We will build up and reinforce the Florida Democratic Party by working diametrically with local and state Democratic leaders, Democratic Executive Committees, and local Democratic elected officials. We will encourage, engage, and educate to empower Black Democrats in the State of Florida. But, as the DBCF we will also support our constituency to become the next generation of leaders in the Florida Democratic Party and the national Democratic Committee, respectfully.

★ THANK YOU, SOUTH FLORIDA, FOR YOUR TRUST AND SUPPORT! ★

To the members of the Democratic Black Caucus of Florida,

For 43 years, the DBCF has made sure Black Floridians are never an afterthought in Florida politics. I am proud to celebrate that legacy of service with you at this year's Annual Conference and Gala, and I am grateful for the tireless work of your organization and its leadership, especially amid unrelenting attacks from the right.

This year, Republicans are interfering in our state like never before; they have redrawn our maps to shrink Black political power, pushed Black history off the curriculum, eliminated Diversity, Equity and Inclusion programs, and made it harder for our neighbors to stay on the voter rolls.

I know what kind of a program the DBCF has built over 43 years because I've seen it in action: registering new voters, recruiting and training candidates, and organizing in communities each and every day. The pendulum doesn't swing back toward justice on its own, it takes a courageous group of people who believe in a brighter, more equitable future for our state, pushing it, election after election, and once again that responsibility is ours.

The Democratic Black Caucus of Florida has carried the torch for Black Floridians, passed from one generation of leaders to the next. That torch will shape this state for decades to come. I am committed to working alongside DBCF leadership and local chapters to elevate Black voices and reach the Black voters who will determine the outcome of this election.

Our neighbors are worth fighting for. Florida is worth fighting for. And we will not stop until we take back this state.

Ifeoma Ike

Keynote Speaker — Legacy & Leadership Luncheon

DBCF 43rd Annual Conference — “The Torch Is In Our Hands Now”

Ifeoma Ike is an award-winning attorney, bestselling author, and policy strategist whose career has carried her from Capitol Hill to City Hall to the frontlines of racial justice movements — building, quite literally, the kind of leadership legacy this conference calls all of us to carry forward. As Founder & Chief Equity Weaver of impact agency Pink Cornrows, Ifeoma has supported global and national political and social campaigns, designed equity strategies for municipal, tech, and health sectors, and co-drafted policies aimed at advancing justice for marginalized communities while leading with joy and curiosity.

A former Wall Street attorney, Ifeoma's path into public service began on Capitol Hill, where she served as a Congressional Black Caucus Foundation Fellow, working as a policy aide to the late Hon. Donald M. Payne, Sr. (NJ) and as counsel to the U.S. House Judiciary Committee under the leadership of the late Hon. John Conyers. While in Washington, she co-organized the first congressional staffer walkout following the murder of Trayvon Martin and facilitated the creation of three congressional caucuses, including the Congressional Caucus on Black Innovation, which centers the evolving tech and AI ecosystem and its impact on the future of work.

Ifeoma carried that same commitment to public service into New York City government, where she served as Executive Deputy Director of the City of New York's Young Men's Initiative. There, she co-drafted two executive orders on equity and mental health and led the groundbreaking teacher recruitment strategy NYC Men Teach, which raised the percentage of male teachers of color in NYC from 8% to 17%, with a 95% retention rate. Her civic leadership continues today: Ifeoma is the first appointee from the New York City Public Advocate's Office to serve on the city's Conflict of Interest Board (COIB) — a role rooted in the same principle at the heart of this conference: that leadership means being accountable to the people you serve.

A movement attorney with a background in human rights, civil rights, and mediation, Ifeoma was part of the largest national bail strategy to date, the Mass Bailout campaign, partnering with Global Citizen and justice-minded influencers including director Ava DuVernay and singer and musician John Legend to free over 100 vulnerable people from Rikers Island. She has also advised and facilitated justice efforts centering the humanity of Black lives in Ferguson, Haiti, New Orleans, and Flint, as well as families with lived experience of state-sanctioned violence.

Ifeoma's Pink Cornrows tiam most recently was selected by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation as the Narrative Strategy partner for ECOSYS, a national, multi-state initiative advancing policies that enable Black children and families to thrive across thirteen states — work that builds on the acclaimed “COVID While Black” research project, which introduced culture-led data collection and storytelling during the pandemic and drew support from the Ford, Robert Wood Johnson, and Rockefeller Foundations. Ifeoma is also a NYU McSilver Institute Resident Fellow and the visionary behind the annual Black Policy Lab.

Ifeoma is the bestselling author of The Equity Mindset, an award-winning playwright, and has appeared on MSNBC, CNN, and PBS. She is a graduate of West Virginia University (B.A. and M.A.), CUNY School of Law (J.D.), and The George Washington University Law School (LL.M. with highest honors), and a member of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc.

Rahman K. Johnson, Ph.D.

Master of Ceremonies & Facilitator –

Legacy & Leadership Luncheon

DBCF 43rd Annual Conference – “The Torch Is In Our Hands Now”

Throughout a career spanning public service, higher education, journalism, media, and the arts, Dr. Rahman K. Johnson has embraced a singular calling: building a community that remembers its past, responds to the needs of its present, and reaches confidently toward its future.

A proud Jacksonville, Florida native, Dr. Johnson's story began in the neighborhoods that shaped his values and continues in the city he now serves. Earning degrees at Edward Waters (BA), Seton Hall (MA), and Jackson State (Ph.D.) Universities, he has built a career defined by determination, preparation, and an unwavering belief that leadership begins with listening and succeeds through action.

Since election to the Jacksonville City Council in 2023, Dr. Johnson has earned a reputation for transforming long-standing conversations into meaningful progress. He helped advance the long-awaited widening of Old Middleburg Road after more than two decades of planning, secured the inclusion of an annual HBCU game in Jacksonville's Stadium of the Future agreement, and continues to lead the effort to codify the Neighborhood Bill of Rights, giving people a stronger voice in the future of their communities.

His leadership reflects an equally deep commitment to placemaking—the belief that every great city should tell its own story. Under the leadership of Dr. Johnson, Jacksonville established a monument honoring the Sapelo Seven, led the effort to rename the Jacksonville Fire Museum in honor of Henry Bradley, the first firefighter to lose his life in the line of duty, championed a memorial recognizing the life of Civil Rights martyr Johnnie Mae Chappell, and secured the designation of Ray Charles Place at the site of the legendary musician's Jacksonville home. Each project affirms a simple principle: communities grow stronger when history is visible, honored, and shared.

On the Jacksonville City Council, Dr. Johnson serves on the Finance and Land Use & Zoning Committees. He chairs the Jacksonville Waterways Commission and the Value Adjustment Board, serves as interim chair of the Mayor's Council on Fitness and Well-Being, represents Jacksonville on the Board of Directors of the Florida League of Cities, and serves as council liaison to the Joint Planning Commission, the Jacksonville Public Library and the Cultural Council of Greater Jacksonville. His commitment to leadership extends beyond elected office through active engagement with organizations that advance journalism, scholarship, public service, civic engagement, and international understanding, including Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc., the Society of Professional Journalists, the National Association of Black Journalists, the National Urban League (Quarter Century Club) the United Nations Association of the United States, and SAG-AFTRA. Across every role, his focus remains remarkably consistent: thoughtful planning, principled leadership, accountable government, and sustainable public impact.

An award-winning poet and author, Dr. Johnson wrote Living, Loving, Letting Go, recognized by the American Library Association as Book of the Year. His writing reveals the same philosophy that guides his life—a belief that words can awaken possibility, ideas can reshape institutions, and purposeful service can alter the course of a community. That vision continues to define his life's work and the I'm running to put Florida's 6th District first.

To protect our communities, strengthen our economy, defend our environment, and restore trust in government.

This is the district I know and love.
I will be the representative who shows up every day for the people of Florida's 6th District.

DOTIE JOSEPH

★ DEMOCRAT ★
FOR GOVERNOR

★ Dotie Joseph has a battle-tested record of delivering real results. ★

After eight years in the Florida House, she's running for Governor to make life more affordable, create opportunity, and focus on solutions instead of division.

DOTIE HAS SERVED AS:

- State Representative, Democratic Minority Leader Pro Tempore
- Civil Rights & Government Attorney
- President, Haitian Lawyers Association
- Election Protection Attorney
- First Vice-Chair, Miami-Dade Democratic Party
- Intern, former President Jimmy Carter

GET TO KNOW DOTIE JOSEPH

Born to parents who fled dictatorship in Haiti and chose Florida as home, Dotie Joseph was raised by a pastor and nurse, who taught her to show up, serve others, and fight for what is right.

A proud product of Miami-Dade public schools, Dotie went on to Yale University and Georgetown Law before becoming a civil rights and government attorney with a battle-tested record of fighting for people in the Florida Legislature. She's the real deal!

FOCUSED ON US, DOTIE WANTS TO:

Lower Costs: housing, healthcare, gas, groceries, utilities, and insurance premiums

Quality Education: fully fund schools, raise teacher pay, free breakfast and lunch, teach full history, same standards for all schools, child care credit

Affordable Healthcare: expand Medicaid, lower prescription costs, improve maternal care, establish universal care for all

Rights & Accountability: protect our civil rights (voting, anti-discrimination, etc.) and make government work for people
