

This architectural site plan illustrates the layout of a golf course clubhouse and its surrounding areas. The plan is oriented with the clubhouse building at the bottom and the golf greens at the top. The clubhouse is a long, rectangular structure with a complex internal layout, including a large central hall, several smaller rooms, and a series of restrooms. The building is surrounded by a parking lot with numerous parking spaces. To the left of the clubhouse, there are three vehicle air-locks and two mechanical pads. The golf greens are located to the right of the clubhouse, with a large area labeled 'GOLF GREENS'. The plan also shows a netting area and a turf stripe. Various dimensions are provided throughout the plan, such as 300'-0" for the overall width, 63'-0" for the clubhouse length, and 124'-1" for the distance between the clubhouse and the greens. The plan is a detailed technical drawing with many lines, circles, and text labels.
