FEATURED GLASS POUR TWO VINTNERS GRENACHE $12

The promise of Grenache: WA's hot, dry climate is ideally suited to this drought-resistant, heat-loving variety. The Rocks District of Milton Freewater, just across the Oregon border from Walla Walla bears distinct similarities to Southern France's Grenache mecca, Châteauneuf du Pape; both have ancient river bed soil formations and very hot summers. Many think The Rocks is the most distinctive terroir in America.

SEAPLANE WINE PROGRAM

Our first priority is to pour delicious wine that suits you. Our hope is to share some of the history of Washington wine and where it's going. These are exciting times, and in addition to the established greats, we offer wines from the under-the-radar folks who will soon stand in the spotlight. Woodinville, home to some of Washington's best producers, is just five miles down the road. Look around, the future may be at the table next to you! We also honor Old World antecedents with classic examples from Europe to provide context for Washington's place in the wine world.

While we invite you to bring cherished bottles from your cellar, please, no more than two 750ml bottles or 1 magnum per table.

$20 corkage fee per 750ml

SPARKLING & LIGHT WHITES

Washington has a long history of making Riesling. With some help from some of Riesling's greatest producers, we've learned from the mistakes of the past. Sagemoor's dry riesling is a great example of what the state can do with this noble grape.

Sauvignon Blanc is typically made in two styles here: bright, crisp and light, a la France's Loire Valley, which is represented by Va Piano, and richer, creamier examples exemplified here by Avennia.

Chenin Blanc, particularly when it comes from the Gorge, is remarkable. Erica Orr has a gift for bringing out its potential to show beautiful fruit counterpoised by savory and mineral notes.

FULL BODIED WHITES

Ali Mayfield is at it again with her wonderfully fresh and bright Chardonnay under The Walls label is reminiscent of Chablis. MS Larry Stone of Lingua Franca is at the forefront of the wave of high-quality Chardonnay from Oregon these days.

Please don't overlook the Viognier and Grenache Blanc, we think they are every bit as delicious as Chardonnay. Anna Shafer of Amaurice makes elegant, slightly floral Viognier with stunning texture. James Mantone brings out the savory, mineral side of Grenache Blanc.

PINOT NOIR

Most of Washington is just too dang hot for Pinot, but we found a teeny-tiny little producer on Whidbey Island who manages to pull it off in the mist of the Puget Sound. Master Sommelier Nate Ready of Smockshop Band just over the border in Hood River shows Pinot's gracefully earthy side.

GRENACHE & FRIENDS

The legendary winemaker Andre Tchelischeff identified Grenache as one of the most promising varieties for Washington way back in the 1960's. It only took us 40 years to get it, but now we see that Grenache's drought-resistance, affinity for hot climates and diversity of styles is perfect here.

Bob Betz is one of the pioneers of Rhône varieties in Washington, and his 2016 Besoleil shows the mastery he's gained over 40 vintages. Elizabeth Bourcier is part of the future, her label, La Rata, refers to her conviction that she'll always hold true to her cellar rat roots: hands-on, all the time. Of course, she's not just any cellar rat: she works at Cayuse. Perhaps no one more than Christophe Baron, her boss, has plowed the field for Rhône varieties.

SYRAH

Walla Walla's warm summer days and very cool nights help to get Syrah ripe and at the same time maintain freshness. We get another look at Dick Boushey's masterpiece of a vineyard via Betz's La Serenne. Each of these Washinton Syrahs employ use of whole-cluster fermentation, the classic method of the Northern Rhône, which adds savory complexity to Syrah's deep black cherry fruit.

CABERNET FRANC

The "other" Cabernet is actually the genetic parent of Cabernet Sauvignon. Cabernet Franc often goes into Bordeaux blends, but is really compelling on its own. In France's Loire Valley, it is known for its herbal tones, but here in Washington we're able to get it ripe enough that the herbs are background to the beautiful black cherry and currant fruit.

MERLOT

The “forgotton” grape is back. It is mind-boggling that a movie about a guy searching for Pinot Noir in California could have such an effect on demand for one of the great varieties, but yeah, that happened (damn you, Sideways!). You need not fear judgement for ordering Merlot anymore, it’s classic chocolate-covered cherry fruit and plush texture need to be enjoyed again. Drink up!
