

BG Jack “Shane” Taylor, US Army

Brigadier General Shane Taylor serves as the Capability Program Executive for Capability Program Executive Command and Control Information Network (CPE C2IN), a role he assumed in June 2025, where he leads a workforce of over 1,600 personnel in delivering critical communications networks, satellite systems, and hardware and software to ensure battlefield information dominance. A highly accomplished acquisition leader with extensive operational experience—including prior assignments as Chief of Staff to the Assistant Secretary of the Army (Acquisition, Logistics & Technology) and Project Manager for Tactical Network—BG Taylor possesses robust academic credentials with multiple advanced degrees from institutions such as Clemson, Penn State, and the Eisenhower School. Awards include the Legion of Merit and numerous campaign service medals, and he is advanced certified in Defense Acquisition Workforce Improvement Act (DAWIA) program management, underscoring his deep expertise in guiding complex defense programs from concept to deployment.
